Since 2006, guests have gone through the fascinating experience of eating in pitch darkness at Dans Le Noir ? London.

Dining in pitch darkness, hosted and served by visually impaired people, may change your point of view about many preconceived ideas of the world. Rediscovering our other senses is also a way to get back to basics as we should not eat just with our eyes. Taste, smell and texture remain indispensable dimensions to consolidate our judgement and to reappropriate our choices. This unique experience will sharpen your senses and not only will you discover a complete sensory journey, but also a brand new way to socialise.
